THE MEMORIAL

> Jan Scruggs conceived the idea of a national memorial for veterans of the Vietnam War in 1979

> Congress approved the plan for a memorial and its location without a specific design

> The national design competition to select a design for the memorial had four criteria: it be reflective and contemplative in character; it harmonize with its surroundings, especially the neighboring national memorials; it contain the names of all who died or remain missing; and it make no political statement about the war

> Maya Lin was a 21-year-old Yale undergraduate when she won the design competition. There were 1,421 entries in the competition—the largest design competition ever held at the time.

> The granite for The Wall was quarried in Bangalore, India. The panels were fabricated in Barre, VT, and engraved in Memphis, TN

> The Wall is 493 feet long and a little over 10 feet tall at its highest point

> The Wall was dedicated on November 13, 1982

> In 2018, nearly 5 million people visited The Wall in Washington, D.C.

> The Vietnam Veterans Memorial was built with all private funds. No government funding was given towards the construction of the Memorial.

> The names are arranged in order of date of casualty and alphabetically on each day, beginning at the center with panel 1E, down panel 1E, then moving right towards 70E, then 70W towards the center, and ending in the middle on 1W. The first and last casualties are side by side at the apex of the Memorial.

> Additions to the Memorial site include the Three Servicemen Statue and flagpole (1984), the Vietnam Women’s Memorial (1993) and the In Memory plaque (2004).
